Hello all. How are you? It seems weird to think that we would have been nearly doing our SATs tests if school were still open!

Do you remember when we went on a virtual tour of the Anne Frank House? Well, here are some brilliant virtual tours of other museums you can 'look around'. Maybe you could find some of our 'Gallery Rebels' at the Louvre? For more abstract art, keep reading!

Do you remember that little boy, Jesus Daniel we had begun to write to in Honduras?

There are lots of facts about Central America including activities and recipes on the Compassion Explorer page. See the extra page for more information.

Watch the STUNNING journey of a Compassion letter just like ours.

Compassion graduate, Kari, drives for seven hours, twice a month, to hand deliver letters to Compassion-supported children living in a remote village in Northern Thailand.

Discover the distances gone to ensure letters arrive safely by watching Kari's journey here:

Art 	Do you remember we looked at Surrealist art in our topic 'Gallery Rebels'? Here is a really good lesson from the National Academy showing you how to use a range of textures to create 'frottage' inspired by the surrealist Max Ernst. https://www.thenationalacademy/year-6/foundation/texture-treasure-hunt-year-6-wk1-5/# Challenge: use different shades of red to create abstract 'blood red art'. You could even use red beads, sequins, wools and threads to add embellishment to your blood red artwork.

Hope you're all well and happy. Miss you so much folks! Love, Mrs Mackey.
